RE: TESTIMONIAL

Addiction is a powerful and debilitating disease. I have been in contact with many people who cannot stop using and cannot function through daily life without alcohol or drugs. I've come across people who want treatment, but do not know where to start or who they can turn to for help. I believe that with a solid base, recovery for those who truly want it, is achievable.

I was introduced to Any Length Retreat during a Town Hall meeting at Ocean County College, in New Jersey. This facility offers multiple programs that not only treat the addiction, it also works to rejuvenate a person's quality of life, and help to develop the skills needed to work and lead a sober lifestyle.

As the Chief of Police of a shore town community, I have traveled with individuals to Any Length Retreat in Austin. I found a benefit in traveling to Texas rather than helping people to enroll in a facility near their hometown. By taking an individual out of state, you take them away from all elements; leaving everything behind so that all focus can be shifted toward recovery.

I am very confident that this facility and staff is the right choice because what sets them apart is their accountability for their clients during and after treatment. The last client I brought to Any Length Retreat is doing well. He is on a work program, currently employed, and most importantly, living sober.

I would definitely recommend Any Length Retreat in Austin, Texas, to other police departments who are looking to help individuals in their communities with alcohol and drug dependencies.
